

INSTITUT FÜR ISOTOPENFORSCHUNG UND KERNPHYSIK
DER UNIVERSITÄT WIEN

E I N L A D U N G
zum
S E M I N A R V O R T R A G
von

Keith FIFIELD

Department of Nuclear Physics
Australian National University, Canberra

Recent AMS-related developments at the Australian National University

On the hardware side, improvements to our MC-SNICS ion source will be described, an interesting observation concerning NEC accelerator tubes will be noted, and detector developments will be discussed. Measurement techniques and applications for the various AMS isotopes will be covered, with an emphasis on what we now do differently. Direction from the audience on which topics should be elaborated upon will be encouraged.

Dienstag, 11. September 2001, 14 Uhr c.t.
1090 Wien, Währingerstr. 17, „Kavalierstrakt“,
1. Stock, Seminarraum von VERA

P. Hille

W. Kutschera